

President's Advisers Urge Overhauling of White House Secretarial Staff

WASHINGTON — All signs indicate that the White House secretariat is scheduled for some radical overhauling. This is not due entirely to the elimination of Loney Howe, though his absence is most keenly felt. It is due chiefly to the fact that the President's closest advisers are becoming more and more convinced that only one type of caller is getting inside White House doors. This blame they lay at the feet of Marvin McIntyre, who passes on all Presidential appointments, and beyond any doubt is the most powerful man around the White House. There was a day in the first part of the Administration when a cross-section of the country—men of every creed and color—got in to see the President. It kept him in constant touch with what the nation was thinking. Now this has changed. And in the list of callers, day in and day out, there is a decided predominance of the representatives of big business.

Moley's Meals

Professor Moley has been one reason for this. Ever since he became receiver of the St. Regis Hotel and began staging his business dinners in New York, Moley has been constantly trotting down to the White House to introduce some new financial potentate to the President. But the chief reason has been McIntyre. A man of anything but a New Deal background, McIntyre has gone in for dinners, dances, Virginia hunt breakfasts and all the trappings which an effete Washington society can heap on a government official who has access to the throne. McIntyre has taken it all and asked for more. He has surpassed even Charley Curtis's high-watermark in the old Hoover days as the chief diner-out of the Capital.

Effect on White House

This association has direct repercussions on the White House. It shows up not only in the type of caller McIntyre passes through the coveted luner gate, but also in the type of mail or government problems which he puts on the President's desk. It has had bearing on many things lately. It directly affects the Cabinet. Those on good terms with McIntyre find it easier to get in. Secretary Hull, who had taken no pains to cultivate McIntyre, but is first man in the Cabinet, was told he would have to wait two days to see his chief. It also affects Congress. Various Senators have sat in the White House ante-room for hours waiting unsuccessfully to see the President. Then when they were called in and urged to vote for the World Court, or against the McCarran Amendment, the President wondered why there was no response.

During the hey-day of Loney Howe this was partly circumvented—but in a roundabout manner. Even Loney did not dare cross the path of Marvin McIntyre. Once when asked by a certain Brain Trustster if Loney would make an appointment with Roosevelt, Loney replied:

"Do you want to have my throat cut? Don't you know that the only way we keep peace in the White House secretariat is by a strict division of work? Mac makes the appointments."

But Loney, until his health got better, kept a remarkably sagacious ear to the ground and used to give the President, first hand, a pretty accurate picture of what the country was thinking.

But for several months now Roosevelt has had to rely on himself and McIntyre.

The result is that even Mrs. Roosevelt and Anna Dell Boettger have made one or two quiet moves to see that (Continued On Page Four)

CITIES WARNED TO CONSTRUCT SEWAGE WORKS

State Health Department Expects to Take Action in 18 Cities

CONDITIONS NOTED

City Listed as Willing to Co-Operate

Officials of 18 Ohio municipalities today had been warned they must immediately provide adequate sewage disposal service. The warnings have been issued by the state department of health.

Drastic action to force the municipalities to comply with state orders will be delayed, however, until the department has aided cities that are taking the initiative in building new sewage disposal plants or improving present structures.

Circleville is listed among cities willing to remedy its individual sewage problem without a mandatory order from the state. The city is seeking a share of federal works relief funds. The co-operation of the state health department has been pledged.

To Follow Columbus

It is believed Circleville will be forced to improve its disposal system as soon as the Columbus plant is completed. All towns along the Scioto will eventually be forced to help clean up the stream, it is believed, as soon as the state capital begins cleaning its part of the river.

Sixty-seven other Ohio communities have expressed willingness to rectify conditions.

The 18 cities which have been served with notices that action must be taken are: Lancaster, Hillsboro, Wooster, Wauseon, Maumee, Maple Heights, London, Greenville, Greenfield, Buckeye lake park, Ada, Ashland, Bedford, Elkhart Brookville, Bryan, Bucyrus and Crestline.

The state department is empowered to enter the supreme court to require municipalities to issue mortgage revenue bonds to raise funds with which to remedy the situation. If officials refuse to comply with the court's demands for improvements, they are liable to arrest, he pointed out.

May Levy Charges

If communities vote down bond issues for the proposed projects, officials can still make the improvements and pay for them out of charges levied for sewage disposal service.

REPORT PAROCHIAL BILL IS DEFEATED

COLUMBUS, March 26—Opponents of state aid for parochial schools today claimed another victory as members of the senate finance committee indicated opponents of the measure have lost hope for their measure.

Still in committee after two public hearings, the bill introduced by Sen. John Davis (D) of Cleveland, appeared doomed to die in the committee today, although Sen. W. H. Herner (D) of Monroeville, chairman of the finance committee, said he would endeavor to bring the measure to a vote in committee tomorrow morning.

AUTO DRIVER'S ARM IS MANGLED

Raymond Lambert, 27, of Jackson, was in Mercy hospital, Columbus, today suffering a badly injured arm, the result of an automobile accident near the power plant on the Scioto trail. Lambert's car and that of a Boyd-co, Ky. man collided.

Lambert was taken to the hospital where it is reported his arm is badly mangled. The driver of the other car took Lambert to the hospital.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Armstrong investigated the wreck.

LEIST PURCHASES BUSINESS PROPERTY

C. A. Leist, N. Pickaway-st., purchased the business property of Harry West, W. Main-st., for $5,000 at sheriff's sale Monday afternoon. The sale was the result of a $6,500 judgment in favor of John W. Leist and others. The property was appraised at $7,500.

LADIES FIRST, SO BOYS OF TRIPLET GROUP ARE LATE

When a baby girl was born at home to Mrs. John Orrich of Farrell, Pa., Dr. E. N. Hagin suggested the mother be removed to Buhl hospital, at Sharon, Pa. Thirty-six hours later, two brothers were born. All in the family were reported doing well, except the father, who is unemployed.

CHILLICOTHE DELAYS ACTION ON GAS COMPANY ORDINANCE

GINGHER SUPPORTS GAS INVESTIGATION

Senators Paul Gingham, representing Pickaway and Franklin in the Ohio upper house and Senator John Lloyd, of Portsmouth, have proposed a resolution asking a senate investigation of the natural gas supply in Ohio to determine whether it will be exhausted soon or whether it is being suppressed for the purpose of securing higher rates.

A committee of five senators is asked to conduct the investigation. Gingham has been appointed a member of the senate committee to inquire into the relief administration.

Delay Is Asked

A week ago, W. H. Phipps, head of the Universal, asked Chillicothe and Circleville council not to pass rate ordinances with the Ohio Fuel since they might interfere with the pipeline company's contract.

A resolution, instructing the auditor of Chillicothe not to pay Burns and McDonald, engineers, $1,300 remaining on a bill for a gas survey, which recommended a higher rate for the gas company, was defeated when only two councilmen voted for it. Later a resolution was adopted instructing the auditor of Chillicothe to seek a reduction in the remaining $1,300. Some councilmen claimed the engineers did not keep council advised at all times concerning the progress of the survey.

The gas company contract now under council consideration asks a sliding scale rate for five years, a substantial increase being noted in the fifth year.

No Offer Here Yet
The gas company has not yet offered a new rate contract here although such action is expected. The Chillicothe contract was offered at a dinner sponsored by the gas company for councilmen and other city officials.

"Relief directors in the 88 counties will be given increased responsibility," Stillman explained. "If they fail to make good, without the state field workers' supervision, we will find some one to take their places," he declared.

Discharge of the entire staff of the state organization today was the third bulk dismissal by Stillman, who yesterday started his second week as head of the state's relief set-up.

His first sweeping dismissal order cut off approximately 28 clerks and stenographers in the state office, his second order discharged 25 more minor employees. Fifteen more watchmen, clerks and minor assistants in the surplus commodities and auditing departments of the state office have been released as the federal representative proceeded to carry out his promise to trim administration expenses.

GEORGE BEERS NOW WORKING IN COUNTY

George Beers, of Commercial Point, who has been in the eighth district office of the sales tax division, has been transferred to Pickaway-co and will work with E. W. 'Ernie' Weiler here.

Her four sons and daughter, Mrs. Loring McAbee, are named beneficiaries under the will of the late Samantha W. Hosler, of Monroeville, according to the will filed in probate court.

A son, Henry J., is named executor with Roy McCoy, Thomas Bennett and Everett Dick as appraisers.

The property is estimated to be worth $4,600, $4,000 of which is real estate.

DUST STORM END IS NEAR

Rain Clears Skies In Kansas; Report Dust-Afflicted Persons Improve

DENVER, Mar. 26—Clear, dustless skies today brought cheer to southeastern Colorado, for days smothered under swirling clouds of sand and topsoil that brought disease and death to men and animals.

A rain in the vicinity of Elkhart, Kan., 70 miles beyond the Kansas-Colorado line, cleared the air of the blinding, suffocating clouds.

Persons suffering from lung irritations caused by the choking silt were reported as improving rapidly. Cattlemen said that buffalo to grass, principal range forage, may yet be saved by rain.

Tests were being made of samples of dust obtained by an airplane at different altitudes over Denver.

Dr. Paul J. Connor, president of the state board of health, said that by Thursday they would be completed, and it would be possible to determine to what extent the "dust pneumonia" that has afflicted many persons in southeastern Colorado, was carried by the whirling soil.

2 VIOLATORS OF GAME LAWS FINED

Two game law violators, William "Dude" Stottlemire Jr., this city, and L. E. Perkins, Springfield, Mo., were each fined $25 and costs by Squire H. O. Evland, Monday, when they were arraigned. Both were arrested by Game Protector Clarence Francis.

Stottlemire was charged with selling minnows without a dealer's license and Perkins was arrested for fishing in the old canal with rod and reel without a license.

Both arranged to pay their fines.

6 DIE IN PLANE

MEXICO CITY, March 26—Six persons including the pilot were killed instantly today when a passenger plane crashed in flames at El Estero near Jalapa in the state of Vera Cruz. Identity of the dead was not known immediately.

The plane fell on the ground of the Hacienda Santiago De La Pena, property of Don Amador Hernandez, who reported the tragedy to the authorities at Jalapa. The machines were destroyed completely.

DAWSON ARRESTED

Richard Dawson, S. Pickaway-st., was in the county jail today in default of $200 bond after being held for grand jury action on charges of assault and battery.

The complaint was filed by his wife in Mayor W. B. Cady's court.

Marriage Licenses

John Thomas Bragg, 18, 2460 S. High-st., Columbus, Neil House porter, and Myrtle Romine, Ashville R. F. D. Consent of parents.

Domestic Troubles Lead To Deaths of Children

Tragically, motivated by domestic discord and instrumented by the hands of the fathers, resulted in deaths of three children in widely separated sections of the country today.

Brooding over failure to effect a reconciliation with his wife, a Nashville salesman killed his three-year-old daughter and probably fatally wounded himself at West Orange, N. J.

An ironic commentary on the fourth commandment was seen at New York City where a 23-year-old youth probably fatally injured his 72-year-old father with a hammer when the parent urged his son to go to church.

PARIS, March 26—The Franco-Italian accord reached at Rome was unanimously ratified by the French senate today.

MEMEL, Lithuania, March 26—Climaxing a treason trial that may have a profound effect upon the present precarious situation in Europe, four prominent Lithuanian Nazi leaders were sentenced to death today.

They were among 123 accused of murdering a fellow-Nazi named Jesutis, whom they suspected of betraying their alleged plot to overthrow the Lithuanian regime in Memel and establish a Nazi dictatorship.

Heavy sentences were meted out to most of the remaining 119. Two were sentenced to life imprisonment and others to terms ranging from eight to twelve years.

Thirty-five of the defendants were released. The property of all those convicted was ordered confiscated.

Herr Dressler, former president of the Memel chamber, received an eight year sentence. Nine defendants were sentenced to terms of nine years each.

BERLIN, March 26—News of the death sentences imposed on four Nazis in Memel swept through Germany today in a wave of excitement that almost submerged interest in the vital Anglo-German security discussions going on in the chancellery here.

The news, it was understood, was covertly handed to Reichsfuehrer Hitler during an intermission in his discussions with Sir John Simon, while the severity of the sentences, which included two life terms and shorter sentences on others of the 123 Nazis, caused a loud out-cry in semi-official quarters.

YOUTHFUL AUTO THIEVES CAUGHT

Two Columbus brothers, both of whom have served time in the state industrial school near Lancaster, were captured, Monday, by state highway patrolmen who were forced to shoot at the stolen car they were driving.

The youths are Delbert and Lloyd Purdue, 16 and 15, of 89 W. Liberty-st.

The highway patrolmen were hunting an automobile used by robbers to make a getaway from Marion when they spied the youths in a Chevrolet. The driver nearly forced the patrolmen, McConnell and Moon, into a ditch before the officers fired at the fleeing machine. They struck the car and after driving a short distance farther the boys stopped.

The arrests were made at the intersection of State Route 11 and 104.

Both youths were returned to Columbus Tuesday morning by Detective Loos of the city police department.

MAN HUNTED HERE FOR WIFE ATTACK

Local authorities are seeking Albert Jones, former county resident, who is wanted for assault with intent to kill his wife in Bridgeport, Belmont-co, Monday night.

Jones was released from the county jail 19 days ago after serving time for carrying concealed weapons.

He is an ex-convict and has served much time in a southern prison.

To Buy Maintainer

The commissioners, Monday, gave the Deer Creek-2wp trustees permission to purchase a new road maintainer for $355.44.

Part of the purchase price will be paid immediately and the remainder within two years.

AUDITOR'S JOBS PROVE PAINFUL

"Pencil-pushing" positions prove punishing" would be a good caption for a story about the office of Auditor Forrest Short.

Several of Short's aides have been favoring tender fingers caused by too much writing. Personal tax report blanks and other duties force the workers to carry pencils—and use them—nearly all the time. Ned Dressbach, Wait-er, wore a blister on his fingers the first day he worked in the office, and Fred Tipton, Williamsport, has "blunted" one of his fingers.

TORNADO HITS CENTRAL AREA

Man Killed, 15 Hurt In Illinois; Damage to Villages Along Ohio River High

METROPOLIS, Ill., March 26—One person lay dead and fifteen others were suffering from injuries today after a tornado screaming through this community, smashing two score buildings in its path.

Damage to the wrecked and damaged buildings was estimated at close to a half million dollars.

Eight of the injured were in a serious condition.

Crushed to death was Sam Abell, who was trapped under the falling roof of a public garage he owned. Otis I. Holder was critically injured.

Rural communities adjacent to this town of 5,000 suffered property damage as the tornado whirled 40 miles up the Ohio river on both the Kentucky and Illinois sides.

West Virginians Evacuating Homes

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 26—High waters continued to rampage through West Virginia today after forcing hundreds of families in the southern section of the state to evacuate their homes, washing out more than 20 railroad bridges and trestles, blocking all highways and causing damage which state officials say will exceed $1,000,000.

One death was reported today. George McMillan, aged 2, slipped into the waters of a flooded creek near his parent's home at Beckley. The body was recovered more than 4,000 feet down the swollen stream.

Water was standing five-feet deep in the streets of Williamson today. At Welch, 100 patients in the state hospital evacuated when hospital officials feared the waters would come into the first floor. Scores of families at Welch had to leave their homes. Mining operations throughout the southern section of the state were halted.

CRUELTY CHARGED IN CUPP DIVORCE

Extreme cruelty is charged in the divorce petition of Gladys Cupp, Rosewood-ave, against Marvin Cupp, truck driver. The suit was filed Monday afternoon in common pleas court by J. W. Adkins, Jr.

Mrs. Cupp asks custody of two children, aged 6 and 4.

They were married here Nov. 15, 1924.

STATE RELIEF QUIZ TO OPEN, TRUTH SOUGHT

Ten Solons Meet Today to Prepare Plans; Gingham is on Committee

"NO WHITEWASHING"

Relief Office Records to be Called

COLUMBUS, March 26—The state trained its big guns on the relief front today while probers continued their attack on alleged abuses in the state relief organization from three other angles.

Ten members of the legislature's special investigation committee set up their machinery for a sweeping probe and immediately started to drill under the surface of the vast relief administration program in search of the "waste, inefficiency and immorality" which Gov. Martin L. Davey charges infects the state relief set-up.

To Decide Outcome

Meeting to select a permanent chairman, legal counsel and draft a tentative program of procedure, members of the legislative committee today announced they plan to take advantage of work already started by other investigating groups; namely, the grand jury investigation of Franklin-co Prosecutor Donald Hoskins; the drive against "chiselers" launched by county relief directors on the order of C. C. Stillman, federal administrator in charge of Ohio; and the investigation conducted by federal representatives to determine whether any federal statutes have been violated in the administration of relief in Ohio.

Sen. William R. Foss (D) of Mercer-co, a member of the special committee, announced as the committee members met this morning he will insist the legislative group "study the records of the Franklin-co jury investigation, reports of abuses, review the records of the federal relief committee at state headquarters here and contact county directors to learn what they have discovered in their local communities."

There was little possibility of the legislature's committee delegating to charges of FERA Administrator Hopkins that state Democratic chieftains have endeavored to "shakedown" persons and firms doing business with the state relief organization to collect money for campaign and inaugural expenses.

"No Whitewashing"

All physicians in the vicinity have been notified to watch for a man seeking treatment for gun shot wounds.

Believed Marking Time Awaiting Pipeline Action; Ex- pected In April

Chillicothe council was apparently marking time today waiting to see whether the Universal Pipeline Co. is going to take promised action early in April on construction of its lines from Kentucky into this state.

No action was taken Monday evening on an ordinance presented quite a while ago by the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. asking a new contract. The chairman of the council utilities committee reported that he was unable to get enough members together in committee meeting to do anything constructive. He was given more time.

The arrests were made at the intersection of State Route 11 and 104.

Both youths were returned to Columbus Tuesday morning by Detective Loos of the city police department.

MAN HUNTED HERE FOR WIFE ATTACK

Local authorities are seeking Albert Jones, former county resident, who is wanted for assault with intent to kill his wife in Bridgeport, Belmont-co, Monday night.

Jones was released from the county jail 10 days ago after serving time for carrying concealed weapons.

He is an ex-convict and has served much time in a southern prison.

To Buy Maintainer

The commissioners, Monday, gave the Deer Creek-Twp trustees permission to purchase a new road maintainer for $355.44.

Part of the purchase price will be paid immediately and the remainder within two years.

"Pencil-pushing positions prove punishing" would be a good caption for a story about the office of Auditor Forrest Short.

Several of Short's aides have been favoring tender fingers caused by too much writing. Personal tax report blanks and other duties force the workers to carry pencils—and use them—nearly all the time. Ned Dresbach, Watt-st., wore a blister on his fingers the first day he worked in the office, and Fred Tipton, Williamsport, has "blunted" one of his fingers.

TORNADO HITS CENTRAL AREA

Man Killed, 15 Hurt In Illinois; Damage to Villages
Along Ohio River High

METROPOLIS, Ill., March 26—One person lay dead and fifteen others were suffering from injuries today after a tornado screamed through this community, smashing two score buildings in its path.

Damage to the wrecked and damaged buildings was estimated at close to a half million dollars.

Eight of the injured were in a serious condition.

Crushed to death was Sam Abell, who was trapped under the falling roof of a public garage he owned. Otis I. Holder was critically injured.

Rural communities adjacent to this town of 5,000 suffered property damage as the tornado whirled 40 miles up the Ohio river on both the Kentucky and Illinois sides.

West Virginians Evacuating Homes

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 26—High waters continued to rampage through West Virginia today after forcing hundreds of families in the southern section of the state to evacuate their homes, washing out more than 20 railroad bridges and trestles, blocking all highways and causing damage which state officials say will exceed $1,000,000.

One death was reported today. George McMillan, aged 2, slipped into the waters of a flooded creek near his parent's home at Beckley. The body was recovered more than 4,000 feet down the swollen stream.

Water was standing five-feet deep in the streets of Williamson today. At Welch, 100 patients in the state hospital evacuated when hospital officials feared the waters would come into the first floor. Scores of families at Welch had to leave their homes. Mining operations throughout the southern section of the state were halted.

CRUELTY CHARGED IN CUPP DIVORCE

Extreme cruelty is charged in the divorce petition of Gladys Cupp, Rosewood-ave, against Marvin Cupp, truck driver. The suit was filed Monday afternoon in common pleas court by J. W. Adkins, Jr.

Mrs. Cupp asked custody of two children, ages 6 and 4.

They were married here Nov. 15, 1924.

Life Behind Bars

John Paul Chase

Chase, shooting pal of the late Baby Face Nelson, today faced a life sentence in federal prison for the murder of Inspector Samuel P. Cowley of the department of justice. A jury in Chicago court returned the life sentence verdict Monday night. The death penalty had been demanded.

STATE RELIEF QUIZ TO OPEN; TRUTH SOUGHT

Ten Solons Meet Today to Prepare Plans; Gingham
is on Committee

"NO WHITEWASHING"

Relief Office Records to be Called

COLUMBUS, March 26 — The state trained its big guns on the relief front today while probers continued their attack on alleged abuses in the state relief organization from three other angles.

Ten members of the legislature's special investigation committee set up their machinery for a sweeping probe and immediately started to drill under the surface of the vast relief administration program in search of the "waste, inefficiency and immorality" which Gov. Martin L. Davey charges infests the state relief set-up.

To Decide Course

Meeting to select a permanent chairman, legal counsel and draft a tentative program of procedure, members of the legislative committee today announced they plan to take advantage of work already started by other investigating groups: namely, the grand jury investigation of Franklin-co Prosecutor Donald Hoskins; the drive against "chiselers" launched by county relief directors on the order of C. C. Stillman, federal administrator in charge of Ohio; and the investigation conducted by federal representatives to determine whether any federal statutes have been violated in the administration of relief in Ohio.

Sen. William R. Foss (D) of Mercer-co, a member of the special committee, announced as the committee members met this morning he will insist the legislative group "study the records of the Franklin-co jury investigation into reports of abuses, review the records of the federal relief executives at state headquarters here and contact county directors to learn what they have discovered in their local communities."

There was little possibility of the legislature's committee delving into charges of FERA Administrator Hopkins that state Democratic chieftains have endeavored to "shakedown" persons and firms doing business with the state relief organization to collect money for campaign and inaugural expenses.

"No Whitewashing"

"I want to make it clear, however, that this committee will not stoop to an attempt to 'whitewash' anyone." Using the oft-repeated phrase, Foss added, "I want to see the chips fall where they may" and I believe other members of the (Continued On Page Six)

CORN THIEF SHOT

A corn thief was being treated for gun shot wounds today after being "peppered" Monday evening on the farm of Howard Hedges, north of Bloomfield.

Hedges and two others at his residence heard the dogs making a noise and went out to investigate, taking their guns with them. Three men were seen to run and all three countians discharged their guns. One man screamed but kept running.

All physicians in the vicinity have been notified to watch for a man seeking treatment for gun shot wounds.

Hospital News

Mrs. Harold Bumgarner of R. F. D. 2, Mrs. Mary Clay of Watt-st. and Mrs. Clarence Helvering of E. Main-st., underwent major operations at Berger hospital, Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Maude Davis, W. High-st. was admitted to Berger hospital, Monday night, for treatment of a broken right arm suffered in a fall yesterday.

Mrs. William Hoffman and baby daughter were taken to their home in Wayne-Twp, Monday, from Berger hospital.

George Williams, of Williamsport, who recently underwent a major operation at Berger hospital, was taken to his home Monday.

MAY VISIT HOME

Private funeral services for Mrs. Anna C. Young, 67, who died Monday, will be held at the late home, 378 E. Mount-st., Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. but friends are invited to call to view the body up until the time of services.

THE RIVER'S PARADOX OF NATURE

NATURE, even in its most simple form, is complex. There is never one phase that is sweet, and soothing and beneficial that there isn't a counter-phase to nullify it. Nature can be a stalwart builder and at the same time a ruthless destroyer. Time and again have we seen this strange paradox. Often has "the irony of fate" been brought to our attention. Let us take for example a river.

Surely no one will deny the beauty and enchantment of a river winding its silver path through rolling hills to the rhythm of its own ceaseless babble and murmur on a balmy, moonlight, evening. It breathes contentment and solace and fairly radiates happiness and joy. Nothing could be a more complete fulfillment of the good will of God toward man.

Yet, take this same river at flood stage, swollen beyond its banks by melting snow and recent rains. Its beauty has faded. Its babble and murmur have been replaced by the roar of the torrent. It no longer suggests solace and contentment but rather a ravaging beast snarling at the very limits of those in its rushing path, eager to suck in people and their homes who would attempt to check its course. It no longer brings happiness and joy but instead sorrow, misery and despair.
It spreads, death destruction and ruin in its wake. Like this it does not seem to be a fulfillment of God's good will but more an illustration of the power of His wrath.

The river is there. Sometimes a lamb — sometimes a lion, but it will go on forever laughing with man or sneering at his puny efforts to curb its force.

The practical lesson is that the movement for flood control should be continued. It is especially appropriate at this time when public works can provide work opportunities for the unemployed as well as to make an effort to stem the damage of recurring spring floods.

We should be prepared to enjoy the calm splendor of the streams as well as to provide security during its more unruly moments.

OLD-FASHIONED

FROM A SOURCE which is surprising comes a vigorous espousal of old-fashioned institutions and virtues. The oracle is none other than Judge Ben Lindsay, divorce court jurist and advanced thinker in the field of domestic relations.

Out of the depths of his wisdom and a wealth of experience, Judge Lindsay emerges with the conclusion that the forces of this new day, dislocating religion's balance-staff and education's brakes, have permitted the vast motors of human nature to run free, driving close to social catastrophe.

For the remedy, Judge Lindsay insists, we must look to real home life, to education, to religion and to good old-fashioned marriage until death do us part.

This is a strange doctrine to come from the lips of one who has been regarded generally as an apostle of freedom. Also, it is refreshing in its wholesomeness.

BIGGER AND BETTER

THERE should be by all means a proper inquiry into the absence of flag poles from many of the federal buildings in Washington and elsewhere, as suggested by the New Jersey Society, Daughters of the American Revolution. This is a serious matter, regardless of whether it is the result of an oversight or is something in the nature of a conspiracy, as intimated by the society in its resolution to congress. Undoubtedly, the great need of the country today is bigger and better flag poles and more of them.

Later, perhaps, we may get around to such problems as the depression, the care of the feeble and the impoverished once the devastating effects of age have crept upon them, the slaughter of young men on battle fields and the profits reaped by the merchants of death. But first we should see to it that the nation has its full quota of flag poles.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

A March blizzard with plenty of wind, rain and snow, lowered the temperature from 55 to 23 degrees.

Mrs. E. B. Uim, Mrs. Mary
Campas Eagleston and Mrs. H. P.
McChord were named census
enumerators for the city of Circleville. Edward C. Wilkins was named enumerator for Pickaway-twp.

Ralph Timmons of New Holland landed a big bass from the North fork of Paint creek, the largest specimen caught in this section in many years. It weighed five pounds and two ounces.

15 YEARS AGO

Loren L. Bochart, radio operator on the submarine O-12, rejoined his crew at Cape May, N. J., after a visit with his parents, Mr.
and Mrs. Walter Bochart.

A boy who was arrested for riding a bicycle on the sidewalk was released with a lecture by Mayor Fitzpatrick.

Dr. J. B. May of New Holland claims to be the possessor of a genuine Stradivarius violin. It bears the marks of age and carries the date of 1713 with the name of the skilled violin maker. The instrument had been in the possession of a Missouri family for 160 years.

25 YEARS AGO

Easter Sunday was ideal day, with the maximum temperature at 60 degrees. Automobile trips vied in public favor with the time-honored parade of the streets.

The Lutheran church on W.
Main-st., erected in 1868, was being torn down by S. M. Graumlich and a modern brick residence was to be erected on the lot by Attorney
E. A. Brown, who had purchased the property for $3,500.

Moses Moyst, N. Scioto-st., celebrated his ninety-second birthday anniversary with a family dinner.
He was the oldest blacksmith in Pickaway-co and had been a resident of Circleville for 72 years.

A Thought

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

McDONALD
FEADER

READ THIS FIRST:

Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girl who longs to dance, is loved by the Dumny, a deaf mute, and Marcu.
She despises her mother, Anica, but is fond of her father, Girtza. Marcu tempts Consuelo with a huge diamond and the apocryphal to marry him with the prospect of a gypsy sweetheart has tricked her about the ring's value. In town she sees three men playing cards near a private car on a railroad siding. She dances for them. Much impressed, one of the men, Stewart Blackmire, New York theatrical producer, promises to return in 10 days and give Consuelo a pair of slippers. Marcu bargains with Girtza for his daughter's hand.
Reluctantly Consuelo agrees to marry Marcu and the gypsies celebrate. On her wedding day, Black-mire and his friends return with the slippers for Consuelo. She asks him to take her to New York.
(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 13

"I COULDN'T do that," Blackmire answered after a moment.
Consuelo moved closer to him.
"You like me, don't you?"

"Ye-es." He stepped back from her.

"Then take me with you, white
man."

"Gypsy girl, what you ask is quite impossible. I can't take you back with me."

"Why?" she demanded.

"For many reasons—" he stammered with the words, then thought came.
"Because I have a wife!"

Doug gave Bill a broad wink.

"Do you think that is reason to me? I am not asking you to marry me. I am asking myself at your feet and all I ask is that you take me with you and let me dance in one of your shows in New York. Then I will not care if you say, I am through. I can make money once I get there."

He shook his head.

The gypsy eyes narrowed.

"I am not good enough for you,
eh?"

"Oh no, it's not that, not that at
all. What could he say? "You haven't any technique," he lied lamely.

Consuelo frowned at him.

"I don't know what you mean."

"I mean you've never taken dancing lessons. You can't dance, you know, without lessons and learning technique and—"

"You mean I can't dance good enough, white man?"

"You are a liar!" For an instant her anger flared out at him, then she laughed. "You would take me back if you didn't have a wife?" Inside she was still angry, for she had told too many fortunes to believe this he had said. "You would take me back if I could dance good enough?"

"Yes—" Obviously he was embarrassed.

Again she laughed.

"Then you have no reasons, my friend!" She took her eyes from him.

There was uneasy silence between them.

"Tonight I will be married to Marcu. I will dance for you first—if you like."

"Don't think you have time," Bill said quickly. "We only have a 15-minute wait, this time. You see I arranged the schedule and didn't leave it to this dumb-bell."

"Say, how do you get that way?"
from Doug. "I'm not dumb, am I, Consuelo? See, I remembered your name. And listen, baby, I didn't forget you either. Stewart isn't the only one who remembered you. You and all the movie dames in Hollywood. Little woman, you have made a deep impression upon me. Wait a minute." He vanished in the car and a second later appeared with a five-pound box of candy under his arm. "Here, sweets to the sweetest girl but true."

The girl thanked him. Her lips

"Well, gypsy—"

were smiling but there was no
merriment in her eyes.

It was after dinner. Stewart and Bill were playing backgammon at 20 cents a point. Stewart had doubled but now he was blocked.

"You're in a hole, old man. Double you." Bill chewed the end of his cigar triumphantly.

"You're on."

Doug was watching them.

"Only babies and nitwits play that game. Now if there were four of us we could have a game of contract, but no, you two have to sit there hour after hour like bumps on a log and play that fool thing. We're stopping for 15 minutes at this next town and I suppose you will keep on sitting here in the heat—"

"They paid no attention to him."

The train was slowing down.
When it stopped Doug got off and walked up to the station. For lack of something better to do he went in and ordered a cool drink. When he had finished he noticed a crowd standing on the baggage platform and went up to them. Suddenly the inertia dropped from him and he ran back to the private car.

"Stewart! Bill, drop that game and come with me!" His voice rang with excitement.

"Another Indian?" snorted Bill.

"A blonde from—"

"No, come on quick!" Doug insisted.

"Aw, go away and leave us alone,"
was the rejoinder from Bill.

For a moment he coaxed them.
It was no use. With a look of disgust he left and went back to the baggage platform. The crowd had already dispersed except for a girl who was picking up something from the floor. When she had finished she turned back to the train.
As she was getting on the day coach
Doug spoke to her.

"Well, gypsy—"

She looked quickly. It was not the gypsy, but a blonde man.

"Hello."

"How come, girl? Law come?"

"How come? On the train." She tossed her head. "I have money.
The train carry me as well as your friend who is too good to be seen with a gypsy!" She paused. "Tell him for me that gypsies get what they want!" She was gone.

Doug went back to the private car.
He was chuckling to himself.

Poems That Live

Now are the winds about us in their glee.Tossing the slender tree; Whirling the sands about his furious car.March cometh from afar;
Breaks the sealed magic of old
Winters' dreams.And rends his glassy streams;
Chafing with potent airs, he fiercely
laysTheir fetters from the lakes,
And, with a power by queenly
Spring supplied,
Wakens the slumbering tide.With a wild love he seeks young
Summer's charmsAnd clasps her to his arms;
Lifting his shield between, he drives
awayOld Winter from his prey:
The ancient tyrant whom he boldly
braves.Goes howling to his caves;
And, to his northern realm compelled to fly.Yields up the victory; Melted are all his bands, o'er-thrown his towers.And March comes bringing flowers.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

"THE LUCK OF THE DEVIL"

EVERY PLAYER has evenings
when he cannot lose. Nobody can account for that fact. One evening
I happened to be playing in such a streak. Lenz was sitting out and commenting upon it. When the hand shown came out, and I went game on an impossible contract, because West led out of turn, and I called upon East to lead a spade, Lenz remarked:
"You have the luck of the devil."

Bidding went: South, 2-No Trumps, which was not a very good bid;
North, 3-Spades; South, 3-No Trump, having forgotten that he had opened with that call, but nobody objected; North, 3-Spades, repeating the take-out; South, 4-Spades, which East doubled.

West led the J of hearts, out of turn; I made him take up his card,
and called for a spade from East;
this alone saved us from defeat. East led the 8 of spades, which was allowed to run to my 10. Two added leads of trumps picked up all missing trumps.

Of course West's lead of the 1 of hearts had marked East with holding the K. A low club was led from dummy. West's K won. He put dummy in the lead with a diamond.

Dummy's Ace of clubs won the next trick. I ruffed a third lead of that suit. A heart up to dummy's A-Q won 2 tricks in that suit. Dummy's Ace of diamonds won our ninth trick.
I ruffed dummy's last club, for game.
The last 2 diamonds I held had to be given East.

Except for the mistake made by West in leading out of turn we would have gone down a trick. An opening lead of diamonds by East must be advised to lose 2 diamonds, 1 club, and 1 trump trick, or the equivalent in an added trump trick, in case dummy ruffed a diamond.

Home Is Ahead of Hospital
In Tasty Food for Invalid

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

HERE IS THE place where the home nurse can really shine. There may be some doubts as to whether she can give a bath as well as the hospital trained nurse, and perhaps some other things. But when it comes to food for the invalid,
the home nurse is so far ahead of the hospital nurse that it is a sacrilege to mention them together.

Miss Noyes in her book on the
"Home Care of the Sick" emphasizes that meals for the invalid should be on time. But I am not so sure about that. Breakfast, at least, should not happen until the breakfast is ready for it.

The really monumental advantage home has over the hospital is that you can have breakfast when you wake up. You need not be jolted out of a pleasant snooze just as the dawn is beginning to creep coldly over the landscape, to attack some clammy
oatmeal, covered with a light blue liquid which goes under the name of cream.

Nor need you have your attention focused on the monotony called supper (of which the piece de resistance is caribou steak) at about the time you close up the office under the code, while the sun is shining bright as a gold dollar and the birds are quarreling loudly on the boughs,
as you do in the hospital.

So far as the scientific principles of feeding the sick are concerned,
they are no different from the principles of dietetics under normal conditions. The invalid needs starches, sugars, vegetables, fat, protein, salts, water and the vital elements. Just the same as the well man. The weight loss that attends illness can be avoided by giving carbohydrates (starches, sugars, vegetables, fruits)

in the form of milk, lemonade, orange juice, tomato juice, oatmeal,
gruel, custard, ice cream.

Ice cream is the dish of dishes while the invalid is really sick, with no relish for food. It always has nausea that is present, its coolness is refreshing, it is digestible and highly nutritious.

The diet for this early period of an illness is what is known among diet technicians as "soft" or "liquid."

With fever, contrary to general belief, the patient's digestive powers are quite adequate, and what he eats will nourish him.

In my youth, the ladies of the neighborhood in which I lived were proud, not as housekeepers are now of being able to paint almost well enough so they don't have to give the pictures away, or of being able to play the piano almost well enough so they didn't have to do it free at a concert, but of their recipes. These were guarded like the secret of a medieval guild. But one of them made a convalescent dish called "wine jelly." And I am able to divulge the way it was made.

To one pint of cold water add one box of Knox's steak just as the dawn
is beginning to creep coldly over the
landscape, to attack some clammy
oatmeal, covered with a light blue
liquid which goes under the name of
cream.

THE RIVER'S PARADOX OF NATURE

NATURE, even in its most simple form, is complex. There is never one phase that is sweet and soothing and beneficial that there isn't a counter-phase to nullify it. Nature can be a stalwart builder and at the same time a ruthless destroyer. Time and again have we seen his strange paradox. Often has "the irony of fate" been brought to our attention. Let us take for example a river.

Surely no one will deny the beauty and enchantment of a river winding its silver path through rolling hills to the rhythm of its own ceaseless babble and murmur on a balmy, moonlight, evening. It breathes contentment and solace and fairly radiates happiness and joy. Nothing could be a more complete fulfillment of the good will of God toward man.

Yet, take this same river at flood stage, swollen beyond its banks by melting snow and recent rains. Its beauty has faded. Its babble and murmur have been replaced by the roar of the torrent. It no longer suggests solace and contentment but rather a ravaging beast snapping at the very loins of those in its rushing path, eager to suck in people and their homes who would attempt to check its course. It no longer brings happiness and joy but instead sorrow, misery and despair. It spreads, death destruction and ruin in its wake. Like this it does not seem to be a fulfillment of God's good will but more an illustration of the power of His wrath.

The river is there. Sometimes a lamb — sometimes a lion, but it will go on forever, laughing with man or sneering at his puny efforts to curb its force.

The practical lesson is that the movement for flood control should be continued. It is especially appropriate at this time when public works can provide work opportunities for the unemployed as well as to make an effort to stem the damage of recurring spring floods.

We should be prepared to enjoy the calm splendor of the streams as well as to provide security during its more unruly moments.

OLD-FASHIONED

FROM A SOURCE which is surprising comes a vigorous espousal of old-fashioned institutions and virtues. The oracle is none other than Judge Ben Lindsay, divorce court jurist and advanced thinker in the field of domestic relations.

Out of the depths of his wisdom and a wealth of experience, Judge Lindsay emerges with the conclusion that the forces of this new day, dislocating religion's balance-staff and education's brakes, have permitted the vast motors of human nature to run free, driving close to social catastrophe.

For the remedy, Judge Lindsay insists, we must look to real home life, to education, to religion and to good old-fashioned marriage until death do us part.

This is a strange doctrine to come from the lips of one who has been regarded generally as an apostle of freedom. Also, it is refreshing in its wholesomeness.

BIGGER AND BETTER

THERE should be by all means a proper inquiry into the absence of flag poles from many of the federal buildings in Washington and elsewhere, as suggested by the New Jersey Society, Daughters of the American Revolution. This is a serious matter, regardless of whether it is the result of an oversight or is something in the nature of a conspiracy, as intimated by the society in its resolution to congress. Undoubtedly, the great need of the country today is bigger and better flag poles and more of them.

Later, perhaps, we may get around to such problems as the depression, the care of the enfeebled and the impoverished once the devastating effects of age have crept upon them, the slaughter of young men on battle fields and the profits reaped by the merchants of death. But first we should see to it that the nation has its full quota of flag poles.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO
A March blizzard with plenty of wind, rain and snow, lowered the temperature from 55 to 23 degrees.

Mrs. E. B. Ulm, Mrs. Mary Campa Eagleson and Mrs. H. P. McChord were named census enumerators for the city of Circleville. Edward C. Wilkins was named enumerator for Pickaway-twp.

Ralph Timmons of New Holland landed a big bass from the North fork of Paint creek, the largest specimen caught in this section in many years. It weighed five pounds and two ounces.

15 YEARS AGO
Loren L. Bochart, radio operator on the submarine O-12, rejoined his crew at Cape May, N. J., after a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bochart.

A boy who was arrested for riding a bicycle on the sidewalk was released with a lecture by Mayor Fitzpatrick.

Dr. J. B. May of New Holland claims to be the possessor of a genuine Stradivarius violin. It bears the marks of age and carries the date of 1713 with the name of the skilled viola maker. The instrument had been in the possession of a Missouri family for 160 years.

25 YEARS AGO
Easter Sunday was ideal day, with the maximum temperature at 79 degrees. Automobile trips vied in public favor with the time-honored parade of the streets.

The Lutheran church on W. Main-st., erected in 1868, was being torn down by S. M. Graulich and a modern brick residence was to be erected on the lot by Attorney E. A. Brown, who had purchased the property for $3,500.

Moses Moyst, N. Scioto-st., celebrated his ninety-second birthday anniversary with a family dinner. He was the oldest blacksmith in Pickaway-co and had been a resident of Circleville for 72 years.

A Thought for Today

"Therefore when thou doest thine alms, do not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets, that they may have glory of men. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward."
—St. Matthew, 6:2.

GYPSY GIRL
THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE
McDONALD LEADER

READ THIS FIRST:
Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girl who longs to dance, is loved by the Dummy, a deaf mute, and Marcu. She despises her mother, Antica, but is fond of her father, Girtza. Marcu tempts Consuelo with a huge diamond and she agrees to marry him until she suspects her gypsy sweetheart has tricked her about the ring's value. In town she sees three men playing cards near a private car on a railroad siding. She dances for them. Much impressed, one of the men, Stewart Blackmire, New York theatrical producer, promises to return in 10 days and give Consuelo a pair of slippers. Marcu bargains with Girtza for his daughter's hand. Reluctantly Consuelo agrees to marry Marcu and the gypsies celebrate. On her wedding day, Blackmire and his friends return with the slippers for Consuelo. She asks him to take her to New York. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

"I COULDN'T do that," Blackmire answered after a moment. Consuelo moved closer to him. "You like me, don't you?" "Ye-es." He stepped back from her. "Then take me with you, white man." "Gypsy girl, what you ask is quite impossible. I can't take you back with me." "Why?" she demanded. "For many reasons—" he stumbled with the words, then thought came. "Because I have a wife!" Doug gave Bill a broad wink. "Do you think that is reason to me? I am not asking you to marry me. I am flinging myself at your feet and all I ask is that you take me with you and let me dance in one of your shows in New York. Then I will not care if you say, I am through. I can make money once I get there." He shook his head. The gypsy eyes narrowed. "I am not good enough for you, eh?" "Oh no, it's not that, not that at all." What could he say? "You haven't any technique," he lied lamely. Consuelo frowned at him. "I don't know what you mean." "I mean you've never taken dancing lessons. You can't dance, you know, without lessons and learning technique and—" "You mean I can't dance good enough, white man?" "Well—er—" "You are a liar!" For an instant her anger flared out at him, then she laughed. "You would take me back if you didn't have a wife?" Inside she was still angry, for she had told too many fortunes to believe this he had said. "You would take me back if I could dance good enough?" "Yes—" Obviously he was embarrassed. Again she laughed. "Then you have no reasons, my friend!" She took her eyes from him. There was uneasy silence between them. "Tonight I will be married to Marcu. I will dance for you first—if you like." "Don't think you have time, a 15-minute wait this time. You see I arranged the schedule and didn't leave it to this dumb-bell." "Say, how do you get that way?" from Doug. "I'm not dumb, am I, Consuelo? See, I remembered your name. And listen, baby, I didn't forget you either. Stewart isn't the only one who remembered you among all the movie dams in Hollywood. Little woman, you have made a deep impression upon me. Wait a minute." He vanished in the car and a second later appeared with a five-pound box of candy under his arm. "Here, sweets to the sweet-trite but true."

Poems That Live
SONGS IN MARCH
Now are the winds about us in their glee.
Tossing the slender tree;
Whirling the sands about his furious car,
March cometh from afar;
Breaks the sealed magic of old Winters' dreams,
And rends his glassy streams;
Chafing with potent airs, he fiercely takes
Their fetters from the lakes.
And, with a power by queenly Spring supplied,
Wakens the slumbering tide.

With a wild love he seeks young Summer's charms
And clasps her to his arms;
Lifting his shield between, he drives away
Old Winter from his prey;
The ancient tyrant whom he boldly braves,
Goes howling to his caves;
And, to his northern realm compelled to fly,
Yields up the victory;
Melted are all his bands, o'er-thrown his towers,
And March comes bringing flowers.
—William Gilmore Simms

CONTRACT BRIDGE
By E. V. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

"THE LUCK OF THE DEVIL"
EVERY PLAYER has evenings when he cannot lose. Nobody can account for that fact. One evening I happened to be playing in such a streak. Lenz was sitting out and commenting upon it. When the hand shown came out, and I went game on an impossible contract, because West led out of turn, and I called upon East to lead a spade, Lenz remarked: "You have the luck of the devil."

Bidding went: South, 2-No Trumps, which was not a very good bid; North, 3-Spades; South, 2-No Trumps, having forgotten that he had opened with that call, but nobody objected; North, 3-Spades, repeating the take-out; South, 4-Spades, which East doubled.

West led the J of hearts, out of turn; I made him take up his card, and called for a spade from East; this alone saved us from defeat. East led the 8 of spades, which was allowed to run to my 10. Two added leads of trumps picked up all missing trumps.

Of course West's lead of the J of hearts had marked East with holding the K. A low club was led from dummy. West's K won. He put dummy in the lead with a diamond. Dummy's Ace of clubs won the next trick. I ruffed a third lead of that suit. A heart up to dummy's A-Q won 2 tricks in that suit. Dummy's Ace of diamonds won our ninth trick. I ruffed dummy's last club, for game. The last 2 diamonds I held had to be given East.

Except for the mistake made by West in leading out of turn we would have gone down a trick. An opening lead of diamonds by East must have caused us to lose 2 diamonds, 1 club and 1 trump trick, or the equivalent in an added trump trick, in case dummy ruffed a diamond.

Home Is Ahead of Hospital In Tasty Food for Invalid

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

HERE IS the place where the home nurse can really shine. There may be some doubts as to whether she can give a bath as well as the hospital trained nurse. And perhaps some other things. But when it comes to food for the invalid, the home is so far ahead of the hospital that it is a sacrilege to mention them together.

Miss Noyes in her book on the "Home Care of the Sick" emphasizes that meals for the invalid should be on time. But I am not so sure about that. Breakfast, at least, should not happen until the breakfast is ready for it.

The really monumental advantage home has over the hospital is that you can have breakfast when you wake up. You need not be jolted out of a pleasant snooze just as the dawn is beginning to creep coldly over the landscape, to attack some clammy oatmeal, covered with a light blue liquid which goes under the name of cream.

Nor need you have your attention focused on the monotony called supper (of which the piece de resistance is caribou steak) at about the time you close up the office under the code, while the sun is shining bright as a gold dollar and the birds are quarreling loudly on the boughs, as you do in the hospital.

So far as the scientific principles of feeding the sick are concerned, they are no different from the principles of dietetics under normal conditions. The invalid needs starches, sugars, vegetables, fat, protein, salts, water and the vital elements, just the same as the well man. The weight loss that attends illness can be avoided by giving carbohydrates (starches, sugars, vegetables, fruits) in the form of milk, lemonade, orange juice, tomato juice, oatmeal, gruel, custard, ice cream.

Ice cream is the dish of dishes while the invalid is really sick, with no relish for food. It always annoys a nurse that is present, its coolness is refreshing, it is digestible and highly nutritious.

The diet for this early period of an illness is what is known among diet technicians as "soft" or "liquid."

With fever, contrary to general belief, the patient's digestive powers are quite adequate, and what he eats will nourish him.

In my youth, the ladies of the neighborhood in which I lived were proud, not as housekeepers are now of being able to paint almost, well the pictures away, or of being able to play the piano almost well enough so they don't have to do free at a concert, but of their recipes. These were guarded like the secret of a medieval guild. But one of them made a convalescent dish called "wine jelly". And I am able to divulge the way it was made.

To one pint of cold water add one box of Cox's gelatin. Dissolve and add one scant quart of boiling water, the juice of two lemons, and the rind of two lemons thinly pared, one quart of sherry, one pint of sugar and two or three pieces of stick cinnamon, the whites of two eggs well beaten and crushed shells of eggs to make the jelly clear.

Boil all together about 15 minutes and strain through flannel.

CO-EDS GIVE OPINIONS ON MARRIAGE

Margaret Robinson, left; center, Mariana Thomas; right, Ruth Ketchie

These three co-eds of Weber college, Ogden, Utah, were elected as jurists to render an opinion on the determining factors in the failure of present-day marriages. In her opinion, Margaret Robinson declared that all men are essentially alike, though they think themselves different; that man always has been life's unknown quantity and that while he scoffs at childish things, he is a child himself. Petite Mariana Thomas decided that women will attempt most anything to please men; that if you don't flatter a man he gets bored. Ruth Ketchie asserted that sentiment is the highway to a man's heart and that a man hasn't the slightest chance of evading a determined woman if she sets out to snare him.

CO-EDS GIVE OPINIONS ON MARRIAGE

Margaret Robinson, left; center, Mariana Thomas; right, Ruth Ketchie. These three co-eds of Weber college, Ogden, Utah, were elected as jurists to render an opinion on the determining factors in the failure of present-day marriages. In her opinion, Margaret Robinson declared that all men are essentially alike, though they think themselves different; that man always has been life's unknown quantity and that while he scoffs at childish things, he is a child himself. Petite Mariana Thomas decided that women will attempt most anything to please men; that if you don't flatter a man he gets bored. Ruth Ketchie asserted that sentiment is the highway to a man's heart and that a man hasn't the slightest chance of evading a determined woman if she sets out to snare him.

EUCHE CLUB ENTERTAINED

Three tables of euchre were assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Beatty, W. Mound-st., Monday evening. Guests were members of their club.

Two tables were assembled and high score trophies were presented Mrs. Fred Donnelly and Mrs. Fellers.

The club will meet next week with Mrs. John Carle W. Main-st.

Mrs. and Mrs. A. H. Shasteen and daughter, Bernice, E. Union-st., Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Dearth and daughters of Pickaway-twp., and Donald Dray of Washington C. H. spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leeper of Columbus. Mrs. Shasteen remained for a few days' visit with her son-in-law and daughter.

JUNIOR PLAY IS THURSDAY

Different Casts to Have Part; Show Promises to be Interesting; Starts at 8

Take your pick! If you don't like the cast for Thursday night go see the Junior Class Play Friday night. With two casts everyone ought to be pleased.

Picture George Rader as Bob Mannion, a handsome, conscientious, young man of 23 who edits that "slow but sure" paper, the "Eureka News." He portrays this character both evenings.

Anne Vierebome and Katherine Moore take the part of Peggy Acton Thursday and Friday nights respectively. If she must be a blonde, fellas, wait till Friday, or if brunette is the case, go Thursday.

Who could be better suited for the part of Jimmy Samson, a noisy, twenty-one year old, full of pep and energy than Dick Plum, who sails through the play both evenings.

Jud Fenton can be seen sprawled about over the scenery either night in the form of Ned Harden or Hildeburn Jones.

Mervene Wallace and Dorothy Beatty characterize Virgy Winters, and do they click!

Wargrim the old meany of the play, can be witnessed in either the form of Junior Ruff of John Griffith.

Ellen Clark and Matilda Davis furnish part of the comedy of "Take My Advice" in their interpretation of Mrs. Nelson-Dodd.

Mary Elizabeth Groce and Marjorie Mader bring us the aristocrat of the play in the part of Marcia, Walgrim's daughter.

These players flit about the stage in an atmosphere of a small-town newspaper office. Everything is sleeping soundly until Jimmy Samson enters and then things begin to happen. He—but my time is up folks. If you would like to finish our story listen in either March 28 or 29 at the Circleville high school at 8 o'clock.

PALMER RELEASES ANNUAL 4-H REPORT

Almost 18 per cent of all boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 19 on Ohio farms are enrolled in 4-H clubs, according to the annual report of W. H. Palmer, State club leader for the Ohio State university.

In addition 7 per cent of the village population between these ages are members, swelling the total membership to 32,555.

A total of 4912 adults are listed by Palmer as volunteer advisors of the 3530 clubs located in 80 counties.

In addition to performing project work at their homes and on their farms, the 52,555 club members engaged in a number of community and club projects, Palmer reports.

In 61 counties 13,683 members and friends toured to scenic, commercial, and recreational places.

Members from 67 counties participated in 31 summer camps, "seeking recreation, friendships, personal growth, and help for their club programs"; 4626 members took part.

More than 80,000 people attended community and county achievement programs to learn what 4-H club members do; 763 programs were arranged in 75 counties.

Palmer reports that 820 of the clubs are engaged in some helpful community service.

Physical examinations were taken by 2646 members in 27 counties in which health programs are an important part of the 4-H program; 6500 other members included some general health activities in their programs, such as scoring of food and health habits in order to correct weakness, training in first aid, and hearing talks by doctors and health officials.

At the Ohio State Junior Fair 757 exhibits were made by clubs and club members, and 569 members participated in judging contests, demonstrations, and other activities.

EASTERN GRID STAR IS HELD

Frank John, Guard In Two Princeton Teams, Held for Dormitory Thefts

PRINCETON, N. J., March 26.—Frank B. John, Princeton senior and star right guard on Tiger football team of the past two seasons, today was being subjected to a severe grilling at the hands of a Lieut. Howard Lamberton of the New Jersey state police.

Lamberton arrested the grid player last night on a charge of burglary of university dormitories from which jewelry, watches and clothing worth $2,000 or more have been stolen during the past year.

Under arrest with John is Winthrop Partello of New York City, who was taken into custody on Saturday night. Information allegedly given to the authorities by Partello is said to have led to the arrest of John. Partello is not a student at the university.

Meanwhile a report was circulated on the campus that John had been expelled. Dean Christian Gauss, chairman of the discipline committee, which has the power of dismissal, admitted that it had held a special meeting, but added no formal announcement of its action had yet been made.

John, a native of Pottstown, Pa., and a four-letter man at the Valley Forge Military Academy before entering Princeton was majoring in philosophy.

BUCKS START SPRING DRILL

Opening Up of System May Result In Schmidt's Program Receiving Name

COLUMBUS, March 26.—Start of spring football practice at Ohio State university today signaled the start of a football campaign that may go down in gridiron history as the beginning of a new type of football—the Schmidt system.

Reliable sources at the Big Ten school reported that Coach Schmidt plans to open up the game still more next fall by more intricate passer and the use of that weapon of offense on more occasions.

Gridiron scouts last fall learned about the use of new forms of lateral and shovel passes from the Ohio State mentor and he became known as one of the greatest exponents of lateral passes.

Though he smokes himself, President Roosevelt dislikes sitting in a room heavy with the fumes of tobacco. When a group of conferees are sitting with him he asks for ventilation. If the group is large he asks for no smoking.

A girl of fifteen wrote a letter to Mrs. Roosevelt saying, "I should like some of your dresses that would fit me. I am size 48—and I want to say I have never permitted a boy to kiss me on the mouth."

On the staff of the Federal Coordinator of Transportation are three officers whose pay is greater than Coordinator Eastman's, or of the Interstate Commerce Commissioners. They get not $12,000 but $15,000. They are John R. Turney, director of freight service section; Victor V. Boatner, director of Chicago region; and C. E. Weaver, southern regional director.

Through its various lending agencies the federal government has assumed one-fourth of the total mortgage debt of the United States.

EASTERN GRID STAR IS HELD

Frank John, Guard In Two Princeton Teams, Held for Dormitory Thefts

PRINCETON, N. J., March 26.—Frank B. John, Princeton senior and star right guard on Tiger football teams of the past two seasons, today was being subjected to a severe grueling at the hands of of Lieut. Howard Lambertson of the New Jersey state police.

Lambertson arrested the grid player last night on a charge of burglary of university dormitories from which jewelry, watches and clothing worth $2,000 or more have been stolen during the past year.

Under arrest with John is Winthrop Partello of New York City, who was taken into custody on Saturday night. Information allegedly given to the authorities by Partello is said to have led to the arrest of John. Partello is not a student at the university.

Meanwhile a report was circulated on the campus that John had been expelled. Dean Christian Gaus, chairman of the discipline committee, which has the power of dismissal, admitted that it had held a special meeting, but added no formal announcement of its action had yet been made.

John, a native of Pottstown, Pa., and a four-letter man at the Valley Forge Military Academy before entering Princeton, was majoring in philosophy.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

Young Observes

Coach Earl Young of Chillicothe, writing for the News-Advertiser of that city, makes a real observation concerning the state tournament ended last Saturday: "Why did more than 24,000 persons go to the tournament?" he asks. "There must have been 24,000 there to see Waterloo and about a hundred to see the other teams."

"Waterloo," he continues, "has done more to popularize the game in Ohio than all the new rules or rule-makers. There never was and never will be another team around here like Waterloo—thank goodness. They had perfect passing, perfect ball handling, and perfect shooting — They were just too perfect for the good of other teams."

Backers Interested

About every day someone asks: "When are we going to start making arrangements for the softball season?" There will undoubtedly be a league but it still seems too early to start action.—It is certain Glenn Nickerson will again back a team, his Circleville Oils having won the championship last summer for the second straight year.—It is believed the Container Corporation will again be in the Eschelman Mill, Given Oil, Ralston-Purina (possibly); Mecca restaurants and others—Clarence Helvering is thinking seriously about putting in a Cities Service team while several other merchants are reported interested.

Lot of Work Necessary

There is more work to a softball league than just saying we're going to have a league and then start right in playing ball—Many details must be worked out, entry fees set, officers elected, etc.

BUCKS START SPRING DRILL

Opening Up of System May Result In Schmidt's Program Receiving Name

COLUMBUS, March 26.—Start of spring football practice at Ohio State university today signalized the start of a football campaign that may go down in gridiron history as the beginning of a new type of football — the Schmidt system.

Reliable sources at the Big Ten school reported that Coach Schmidt plans to open up the game still more next fall by more intricate passes and the use of that weapon of offense on more occasions.

Gridiron scouts last fall learned about the use of new forms of lateral and shovel passes from the Ohio State mentor and he became known as one of the greatest exponents of lateral passes.

They are Lew Riggs at third, Billy Myers at short, Alex Kam-pouris at second and Ival Good-man in the right garden. With them, Drensen will have the youngest team in point of age in the majors.

Chir Blouse is Easily Knitted in one Day

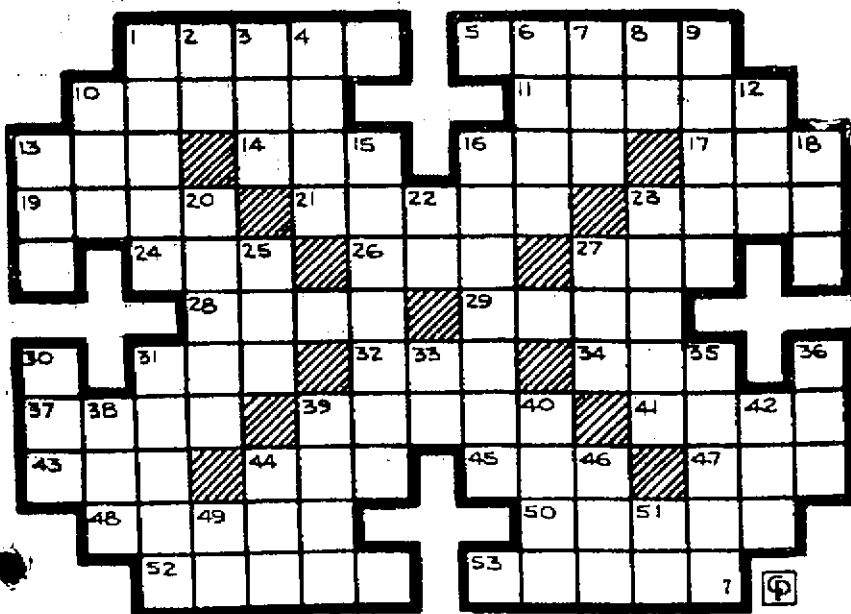

PATTERN 5330

We hear much of how our grandmothers could knit and read at the same time. You could probably quite out-distance them with this jiffy-knit blouse—you can make it in one day! And what a blouse it is—sheer loveliness in a simple stitch! It's lovely in Shetland Floss, and what is more, it takes but four one-ounce balls—of course, you can use other yarns, too—but Shetland gives it a lacy crispness that makes you feel cool just to look at it. And, of course, the first requisite of the summer sweater is to keep you cool! A plain knitted skirt is lovely with it; directions for one are given in the pattern. In pattern 5330 you will find complete instructions for making the blouse and skirt; illustrations of them and of all stitches used; material requirements. To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 124 W. Main St., Circleville, O.

DR SPEEDING TO SOUTH ON FISHING TOUR

Delayed Vacation Starts; to Receive Word On Progress, Howe's Condition

WASHINGTON, March 26.—President Roosevelt today was speeding southward for his long-deferred mid-winter vacation.

Due to arrive in Jacksonville late today, he will immediately board the U. S. Destroyer Farragut there. Later, at an unannounced rendezvous at sea, he will transfer to the luxurious ocean-going yacht Nourmahal, with the owner, Vincent Astor, and a small party of friends abroad.

His secretary, Marvin H. McIntyre, will keep him in contact with official affairs from Miami. President Roosevelt intends to keep within easy reach to receive White House reports on the condition of his principal secretary and close friend, Col. Louis McH. Howe, whose illness delayed his trip for several days.

Before leaving Mr. Roosevelt assured himself through his senatorial and congressional key-men, that his program will be pushed. This includes social security, banking legislation, more funds for HOLC, utilities regulation and NRA extension.

Meanwhile, in tropical waters, President Roosevelt expects to indulge his yen for deep-sea fishing, with perhaps a few informal visits ashore.

TO AID CHILDREN

COLUMBUS, March 26.—A program to take children off the street and give them proper environment and training is being planned here. Council has urged the city to use the Hare home for street urchins transferring orphans to another building.

WASHINGTON C. H. March 26.—The Henry Perrett farm of 215.53 acres, east of this city, sold for $14,835, $69 per acre and $19 above the appraised value. The land was bid in the Buckeye State Building and Loan Co., plaintiff in a court action.

LANCASTER, March 26.—The annual police and firemen's ball will be held at the Elks' club April 26, it has been announced. Two Lancaster orchestras have been obtained to furnish music during the evening.

NAZIS TO DIE, EUROPE FEARS NEW TROUBLE

lacking, it was understood in circles close to the foreign office that strong pressure would be applied on Lithuania to commute the sentences.

Assistance of other powers in trying to persuade Lithuania leniency in order to avoid an explosion in the European powder barrel now perched so precariously near the flame was expected. It was unofficially predicted that Great Britain would take a leading part in arguing to Lithuania that discretion should take the place of punishment in this case.

Germany has been watching progress of the trial ever since its inception weeks ago, and veiled warnings emanated from unofficial quarters that drastic action might be looked for if the sentences were severe.

Announcement that four Nazis whose crime was to plot to raise the Swastika over Memel, must die brought a new public movement for Germany to regard that territory, taken from her in the war.

Formal, but under-cover representations, are expected to be made by Berlin immediately through the legation at Kovno.

LIST MORE FARMS

WASHINGTON C. H. March 26.—Fayette Co. has 1,661 farms compared with 1,569 reported in the 1930 census. The new figure was obtained as a result of the farm census recently completed. During the period many farms have been partitioned and others have been divided through sales.

CHILD WITH THREE HEADS REPORTED

SUVA, Fiji Islands, Mar. 26.—Existence of a "three-headed" child at Komo, in the Lau group, was reported today by John Hill upon his return from those islands. Hill claimed the trace of the two "excess heads" grew from the "main" head. In addition, Hill reported, the child's hands and feet were webbed. Hill stated the parents of the child, natives, were normal. He said the child, three days old, was still alive when he left the islands.

AMERICANS FREED BY MEXICAN GANG

LOS ANGELES, March 26.—Louis F. Vremsak, Santa Barbara, Cal., fortune hunter today had been freed by Mexican bandits who held him captive, together with Mark Fowler of New York, in the fastness of the Zacatecas mountains for several weeks. Mrs. Vremsak was informed by consular authorities today.

"My prayers have been answered," sobbed Mrs. Vremsak. "I knew that God would return him to me." Mrs. Vremsak then praised the courage of Mrs. Mary L. McKinney, who started with Vremsak on a hunt for a reputed hidden treasure in gold was captured by the bandits, and released to obtain the demanded 10,000 pesos ($2,800) ransom money.

Mrs. McKinney, it was revealed, had been unable to raise the demanded ransom but had gone back into the Mexican wilds in the hope of being able to free Vremsak so he could help in obtaining the ransom.

A careful perusal of state relief records is planned first to give members of the group an accurate picture of the method of administering relief in Ohio and arm them with figures showing administrative costs and expenditures by counties.

FDR SPEEDING TO SOUTH ON FISHING TOUR

Delayed Vacation Starts; to Receive Word On Progress, Howe's Condition

WASHINGTON, March 26.—President Roosevelt today was speeding southward for his long-deferred mid-winter vacation.

Due to arrive in Jacksonville late today, he will immediately board the U. S. Destroyer Faragut there. Later, at an unannounced rendezvous at sea, he will transfer to the luxurious ocean-going yacht Nourmahal, with the owner, Vincent Astor, and a small party of friends abroad.

His secretary, Marvin H. McIntyre, will keep him in contact with official affairs from Miami. President Roosevelt intends to keep within easy reach to receive White House reports on the condition of his principal secretary and close friend, Col. Louis McH. Howe, whose illness delayed his trip for several days.

Before leaving Mr. Roosevelt assured himself through his senatorial and congressional key-men, that his program will be pushed. This includes social security, banking legislation, more funds for HOLC, utilities regulation and NRA extension.

Meanwhile, in tropical waters, President Roosevelt expects to indulge his yen for deep-sea fishing, with perhaps a few informal visits ashore.

lacking, it was understood in circles close to the foreign office that strong pressure would be applied on Lithuania to commute the sentences.

Assistance of other powers in trying to persuade Lithuania leniency in order to avoid an explosion in the European powder barrel now perched so precariously near the flame was expected. It was unofficially predicted that Great Britain would take a leading part in arguing to Lithuania that discretion should take the place of punishment in this case.

Germany has been watching progress of the trial ever since its inception weeks ago, and veiled warnings emanated from unofficial quarters that drastic action might be looked for if the sentences were severe.

Announcement that four Nazis whose crime was to plot to raise the Swastika over Memel, must die brought a new public movement for Germany to regain that territory, taken from her in the war.

Formal, but under-cover representations, are expected to be made by Berlin immediately through the legation at Kovno.

CHILD WITH THREE HEADS REPORTED

SUVA, Fiji Islands, Mar. 26.—Existence of a "three-headed" child at Komo, in the Lau group, was reported today by John Hill upon his return from those islands. Hill claimed the trace of the two "excess heads" grew from the "main" head. In addition, Hill reported, the child's hands and feet were webbed. Hill stated the parents of the child, natives, were normal. He said the child, three days old, was still alive when he left the islands.

AMERICANS FREED BY MEXICAN GANG

LOS ANGELES, March 26.—Louis F. Vremsak, Santa Barbara, Cal., fortune hunter today had been freed by Mexican bandits who held him captive, together with Mark Fowler of New York, in the fastness of the Zacatecas mountains for several weeks. Mrs. Vremsak was informed by consular authorities today.

"My prayers have been answered," sobbed Mrs. Vremsak. "I knew that God would return him to me." Mrs. Vremsak then praised the courage of Mrs. Mary L. McKinney, who started with Vremsak on a hunt for a reputed hidden treasure in gold, was captured by the bandits, and released to obtain the demanded 10,000 pesos ($2,800) ransom money.

Mrs. McKinney, it was revealed, had been unable to raise the demanded ransom but had gone back into the Mexican wilds in the hope of being able to free Vremsak so he could help in obtaining the ransom.
